

Ultrasonic system for producing functional beverages comprises a processing chamber, two sources of acoustic vibrations located beneath the surface of the processing chamber, and a control unit. Wherein as sources of acoustic vibrations it consist of piezoelectric transducers with different operating frequencies, the ratio between which is 1.4.