

Land reclamation method involves placing rock material on disturbed surface, leveling and forming fertile soil layer, and layering clay at base, followed by sand, potentially fertile rock, and black soil. Slopes are formed with gradients ranging from 1° - 37° , 37° - 52° , and greater than 52° .