

Extra-high voltage overhead power transmission line comprises supports with a horizontal arrangement of phases in space and single wire transpositions. In one transposition cycle, there are three single wire transpositions in space. Wherein the line is divided into two equal parts, at the boundary of which three wires out of three, namely one central and two outer ones, are crossed with each other.