

Method for producing biostimulant involves preparing a mixture of dried plants, obtaining an extract according to V.P. Filatov method. Walnut waste, specifically the shell and membranes, after removing the kernels from them, is used as the base for preparing biostimulant.