

Ultrasonic system for producing functional beverages contains a working chamber, two sources of acoustic vibrations, and a control unit. Wherein the working chamber is of the closed type, and as sources of acoustic vibrations the system includes piezoelectric transducers with different operating frequencies, the ratio between which is 1.4, wherein the sources of acoustic vibrations located on opposite side surfaces of the working chamber, facing each other.