

Method for selecting drought-tolerant breeding material of spring wheat is based on the toxic effect of the stress factor that acts against the survival of unstable forms. The selection of genotypes is carried out on viable seedlings after cultivating seeds in a highly osmotic sucrose solution with a concentration of 0.9 M in a MIR-554-PE thermostat at a temperature of 21 °C for 7 days.