

Method for fabricating fixed bridge prosthesis involves fabricating prosthesis base from zirconia using computer-aided milling. A temporary plastic prosthesis is first fabricated. The temporary plastic prosthesis is then adjusted to fit the patient's oral cavity. The temporary prosthesis is then laser-scanned to obtain an individually adapted anatomical shape of the occlusal surface, which is replicated during the fabrication of the permanent prosthesis.