

Device for protecting hydraulic power drives against working fluid leaks includes a hydraulic cylinder, a hydraulic manifold, a hydraulic pump, and a drain line. The safety valve piston contains axial and radial channels with bores that are connected to the outlet chamber. The piston is secured with a spring on the other end. The cavity containing the spring is connected to the outlet chamber by a channel.