

Thermoelectric device for controlling the temperature of irrigation fluid in ophthalmology consists of an electronic control unit, a power supply unit, a thermoelectric unit for cooling and heating the irrigation fluid and hoses with an irrigation cannula. The thermoelectric unit for cooling and heating contains a liquid heat exchanger and hoses for circulating the coolant.