

Frame structure comprises passing posts (1), upper passing beams (3), and lower passing beams (2), which are positioned in the shorter and longer walls of the structure and in the floor slab to form a frame for the pre-installation of reinforcement and utility lines, which are installed outside the core of the formwork. Wherein the passing posts (1), upper passing beams (3), lower passing beams (2), and intermediate passing beams (5) are connected to one another by means of sockets (4).