

Artificial foundation contains vertical boreholes driven into soil mass using heavy cylindrical rammer, topped by distribution cushion made of compacted crushed stone. Drilled boreholes contain soil-cement elements.