

Well casing system using foam generators is a circulation system with multi-nozzle foam generators, with a drilling pump manifold. At the inlet to the foam generators, shut-off and regulating elements are installed to regulate the volume of incoming gas, and an additional degasser is installed at the wellhead to improve the cleaning efficiency of the foam system, which is equipped with a continuously operating automated monitoring, control, and shutdown system.