

Device for measuring static and dynamic water levels and the depth of water well includes control panel, steel measuring tape, and indicator probe (4). It additionally includes electromechanical device (3) that operates as scale and, in combination with indicator probe (4), is designed to measure the total depth of well from the top mark (9) to the bottom mark (5).