

Stand for installing uninterruptible power supply system is designed to accommodate UPS modules at various heights along its length, contains horizontal base. It includes a vertical support section that adjoins horizontal base to form L-shaped structure and that includes perforated sections designed to allow air heated by the UPS modules installed on stand during its use to pass through the openings, and horizontal base is designed to accommodate at least three rechargeable batteries.