

Calibrated digital vernier caliper consists of a measuring bar with a scale and a fixed jaw, a movable frame with a digital readout device and a movable jaw, and a magnetic spring housed within the body. The magnetic spring consists of two interchangeable magnets, between which a movable magnet is located, capable of being moved by a rod; the first magnetic sensor and the second magnetic sensor are connected to a built-in microcomputer.