

Heat and mass transfer apparatus assembly consists of three plates arranged in mutually perpendicular surfaces, with an opening in the center of each plate. The plates are square and inscribed in a hypothetical cube, with the vertices of the plates located at the centers of the faces of the said cube.