

Blank for a packaging wrapper of a package with a container having fixing elements on the bottom, includes two end sections which, when assembled, are fastened together to form a closed contour, constituting at least the upper and lower parts of this contour. The lower section is designed to accommodate and hold at least one container. When assembled to form a closed loop, the end sections form locking elements that correspond to the container locking elements and are designed to connect with them for stacking the packages.