

Hydraulic drive for an ejector plate of a garbage truck features a hydraulic pump connected via a supply line to the oil-tank through a filter, a safety valve installed on the pressure line, a hydraulic cylinder for the ejector plate, which is connected to the hydraulic manifold via pressure and drainage lines. A logical valve is installed in it, which serves as connector between the pressure and drainage lines of the hydraulic cylinder, and an additional control line connected to the safety valve.