

Method for dynamic routing of goods delivery under conditions of limited traffic information involves the use of traffic sensors along the areas of the street and road network (SRN). Dynamic routing is performed in real time under conditions of limited traffic information, based on current IoT data received by the road traffic sensors that are located along and measure the intensity of traffic flow in the relevant areas of the street and road network.