

Volumetric projection screen for displaying three-dimensional images transmitted to the screen through a projection optical system. The screen has a shape of a cube and comprises a plurality of vertical wires with uniform density, wherein on each wire, solid-state transparent elements capable of omnidirectional scattering of received light are fixed at different height levels.