

Current-collecting contact insert for electric rolling stock pantographs is made of a carbon-containing material in the form of a plate and consists of a current-collecting section and a base flange. The base flange of the insert is equipped with an additional electrically conductive coating.