

Knitted product having a patterned weave, the ground of which is a single plain weave, with the introduction into its structure in the form of press stitches of an elastomeric thread with the possibility of alternate formation of a stitch and a broach, which in the structure of the knitwear are arranged in the form of a weft thread that crosses the platinum arcs of the ground loops from the front side of the knitwear. Press stitches and broaches in each row of the ground weave rapport - plain weave, formed in a checkerboard pattern. As the ground thread, a textured polyamide thread is used with the use of a polymer with silver nanoparticles with an elastomeric core in the structure. As an additional weft thread, a textured polyamide thread with an elastomeric core is used.