

Device for the reduction of intra-articular fractures of the base of the first finger of the hand comprises a support base, a guide element, a movable fixing mechanism with fixation and holding units of the wrist and fingers. It comprises two bases - fixed and movable, which are interconnected by a distraction guide element. A movable fixing mechanism for reduction is fixed on the movable base, which is made of a sequentially connected fixation and abduction unit, a carriage and a fixation and retention unit for the first finger of the hand, which is locked in the reduction position by clamping screws.