

Damper of an industrial robot consists of a housing, a cover and a rod. The rod is made hollow, and the shaft, which is placed inside this rod, is rigidly connected to the moving link of the robot, and adjustable stops are placed on both sides of the shaft.