

Method for producing aspirin with enhanced biological activity involves subjecting the pharmaceutical preparation of aspirin to in vitro radiation processing with ionizing radiation beams (α , β , γ , n) under controlled irradiation parameters, including radiation energy, beam intensity and absorbed dose.