

Crop residue shredder drum consists of a hollow cylinder, an axle, plates and flat blades that are radially and rigidly fixed to the surface of the cylinder. The working position of the blades is ensured by the pressure of springs fixed between fixed saddles, which are integral with the pin and rigidly connected to the plates, and movable saddles mounted on the pin on the side of the blade's outer surface.