

In method for obtaining solid fuel, water-corrugated cardboard mixture is first prepared, mixed with pyrocarbon obtained through low-temperature pyrolysis of industrial and household polymer waste, held until homogeneous mixture is formed, then pressed and dried. For prior preparation of water-corrugated cardboard mixture, corrugated cardboard made from MS-2B-2 grade paper waste is used, where adhesive base consists of corn starch and agricultural waste.