

Spacecraft consists of a hull to which heat insulating panels are attached. The heat insulating panels are designed as a hollow structure, the cavity of which is filled with a vacuum.