

Method for protecting window glass from excess pressure and rarefaction of blast wave is carried out using seal strip attached to frame and adhesive tape affixed to seal strip and glass. Foam is pressed between seal strip and glass, creating additional reinforcement for glass that counteracts not only excess pressure but also rarefaction of blast wave.