

Screw pile comprises shaft having upper and lower ends, conical tip located at the lower end of shaft, coil located on the outer surface of conical tip, and support element connected directly to upper end of shaft and serving to support external object. Shaft is made of monolithic concrete. Conical tip and support element are connected by reinforcing bar.