

Device for filling sausage casings consists of two tubes inserted one into the other, with the outer tube rotating freely around the inner tube. A retaining ring is mounted on one side of the inner tube, and a flange is rigidly attached on the other side.