

Method of farming giant freshwater prawn in ponds and tanks involves preparing the pond, stocking the shrimp, and feeding them. The broodstock is formed in a finishing pond, mated in broodstock tanks, incubation of eggs is provided in spawning tanks, larvae are raised in rearing tanks in brackish water. Post-larvae are acclimated to freshwater. They are transferred to grow-out ponds and then moved to a finishing pond, where commercial farming is carried out.