

Method for assembling battery cells by pressing and heat treatment, in which the cells are pressed together with their ground ends at a specific pressure of 0.1–3.0 kg/mm², heated to 900–1400 °C at a rate of 200–500 °C per hour, held for 15–60 minutes, and cooled at the same rate.