

Method for producing kelp snacks involves soaking in deionized water, grinding into a puree, drying, cooling, and separating. After the soaking process, to reduce the iodine content, the kelp is heat-treated at a temperature of 85 to 90 °C for 15 minutes. After grinding, it is dried at a temperature of 58 to 60 °C for 10 hours.