

Method for immobilizing irradiated graphite sleeves by introducing titanium dioxide. Wherein, the irradiated graphite sleeves are broken in half, and the fragments are placed in a mold for cementing. The mixture of sleeve fragments and titanium dioxide is cemented into a cubic mold with side lengths of 0.15 meters and subsequently transferred to a container for radioactive waste storage.