

Police shield, made of transparent, impact-resistant plastic, includes a standardized set of accessories for holding the shield with one hand - a strap, a pad, and a handle, and its outer surface features two contoured contact electrodes to which a potential difference is supplied from an electronic unit located on the shield's inner surface.