

Electromagnetic system with adjustable magnetic biasing in the magnetic circuit comprises a symmetrical spatial magnetic circuit with flat end faces and a central opening, yoke and core elements, as well as AC phase and transverse excitation windings. An inductor is installed in the central opening of the magnetic circuit; its core is wrapped by the bias winding and connected to radial projections adjacent to the end faces of the yoke elements.