

Clamp for fixing the lacing consists of two parts, the first of which is T-shaped with a hole and serves as the housing, while the second part is a cap, which is made with the possibility of fitting inside the first part, it is equipped with fixing elements consisting of a rectangular rod and rods with toothed elements on the sides. The opening in the T-shaped part is divided at the top by a retaining partition into two openings, which are joined at the bottom into a single opening, the rods with toothed elements on the sides are equipped with stiffening ribs, the toothed elements consist of three sharp teeth, on the part serving as the housing, U-shaped recesses are formed across its entire surface.