

Geodetic method for determining magnetic declination involves measuring the true azimuth and the magnetic azimuth in the field; the magnetic declination is the difference between these two azimuths. To determine the true azimuth, a portable dual-antenna receiver for the Global Navigation Satellite System is used.