Method for manufacturing facing bricks with textured rough edges includes forming blank in the shape of single rectangular parallelepiped in press using the hyper-pressing method of semi-dry concrete, with simultaneous formation of symmetrical through openings with round protrusions and recesses at specified locations on blank. Edges of blank are mechanically finished along the entire perimeter.