

Method of feeding young pigs involves feeding young pigs with complete mixed feed. Wherein, isoleucine levels in the composition of mixed feed are specifically regulated by introducing synthetic isoleucine. The ratio of standardized ideal digestible (SID) isoleucine to lysine in the diet is 0.55. The specified ratio is maintained in the diets of young pigs during the nursery after weaning, from 24 to 70 days of age.