

Device for clinical determination of sagittal plane of face comprises horizontal plate and sagittal plate, wherein sagittal plate is mounted on horizontal plate, and horizontal plate is designed with the possibility of positioning it in frontal plane in accordance with the position of person's pupils and includes water level attached to it for monitoring horizontal position.