

Method for the selective potentiometric determination of 2,4-dichlorophenoxypropionic acid, in which a sensor is used and a potentiometric measurement is performed using the sensor. The sensor contains a polyvinyl chloride membrane in which the ionic associate of 2,4-dichlorophenoxypropionate of azure I is used as the electroactive substance and dibutyl sebacinate is used as the plasticizer.