

Movable support for boring holes of large diameter and length on lathes consists of a mandrel, a fork that grips the boring tool holder on three sides, a housing with a hole, and support elements in the form of a set of telescopic cylinders with locking screws. The housing has a splined hole. The mandrel of device has external splines located tangentially to the splined hole of the housing.