

Boxcar consists of a crew compartment module, includes two two-axle bogies, an auto-coupling module, a braking equipment module, a frame module, and a body module containing two side walls and two end walls. The walls of the body module are made of a composite material with an adapted perforated geometry.