

Logopedic vacuum massage tweezers contain two flexible, plate-like jaws that are connected on one side; at the ends of jaws, there are parallel working elements with rounded notches, wherein working elements are equipped with chambers connected by channels to notches and to electrical unit that generates pulsed air vacuum, with the possibility of adjusting the vacuum parameters.