

Complex-action classifier consists of a housing mounted at an angle with a screw inside it, a mechanism for lifting the lower part of the screw with the ability to adjust its position, a vibration exciter, and a vibrating conveyor. The vibrating conveyor is designed as a vibrating rotary bucket conveyor with perforated buckets, which is connected to the screen classifier.