

Method for feeding laying hens involves feeding laying hens with a high-protein sunflower concentrate characterized by a reduced crude fiber content of no more than 8% and an increased crude protein content of no less than 47% on a dry matter basis, wherein it is used throughout the entire productive period of the poultry.