

Heat and mass exchanger nozzle has the shape of a straight regular hollow prism of a skeletal structure with open bases and side openings. Each of the side openings in the skeletal structure is partially covered by half of the corresponding face of the prism with a free edge parallel to the prism's lateral edges.