

One-stage dental implant consists of a cylindrical body with a T-shaped thread, a neck, and an abutment. The inner surface of the T-shaped thread is made with roundings in the form of fillets.